As mentioned on page 2, the University's Board of Trustees held their retreat at the Pitt-Greensburg campus in late October. Apparently this is the first time since the late 1980s that the Board of Trustees has met at a regional campus, so this is a really big deal.

The Millstein Library has been chosen to host the first day of Board meetings, which is a great honor. While the Library's staff members have always known what a treasure our building is, it is nice to know that the campus would like to show it off to the people who make decisions about the future of our University. We heard many positive comments from Board members about how beautiful our campus and our Library are Libraries, like regional campuses, always need to think of strategic and creative ways to promote themselves; if we aren't proactive, it can be easy for folks to forget that we are here. This issue includes many things that Millstein Library is doing to promote ourselves to our campus community, our professional community, and to the larger regional community.

Thank you for reading!

Author Tom McMillan visited the Pitt-Greensburg campus on Sept. 24 to discuss his book Flight 93. Faculty, staff, students, and members of the community attended the One Book, One Community event in Village Hall. During August and September, many public and academic libraries throughout Westmoreland County held discussions of Flight 93. Tom donates all proceeds from the book's sales to the Friends of the Flight 93 Memorial in Shanksville, PA.

FALL WINDOW DISPLAYS

Jim's entrance display featured books on coffee for August, which is national coffee month.

Sandy's exit display featured books by candidates for President of the United States.

Jim Vikartosky and Sandy Buehner created the window displays inside the library's main entrance and exit for August through October.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES RETREAT

The second floor of the Millstein Library was decorated with photographs and drawings of the Pitt-Greensburg campus for the University of Pittsburgh's Board of Trustees retreat and meetings on Oct. 22-23. The Board has not met outside of the Pittsburgh campus since 1987.

PALA

Amanda Folk, Anna Mary Williford, and Kelly Bradish presented at the 2015 Pennsylvania Library Association (PaLA) Conference on Sunday, October 4 in State College, PA. This year's conference theme was "PA Libraries: Engage, Educate, Enrich."

The group's presentation, "Dynamic Duo: Reference and Instruction Are Better Together," focused on communication and outreach efforts for reference and instruction services at Millstein Library, including research consultations, online research guide updates, and more.

Slides from the group's presentation can be viewed at slideshare.net/millsteinlib.

LIBRARY UPDATES

The Wireless Workstation has expanded to the second floor of the Millstein Library in the seating area overlooking the patio. Students now have even more space to plug-in and access the updated wireless internet.

New tables with wheels have also been added to room 238 for added flexibility in the library instruction classroom.
